San Juan College Celebrates Latino Heritage Week October 8-12 Various Places on SJC Main Campus

Hispanic Heritage Month begins on September 15, the anniversary of independence for five Latin American countries—Costa Rica, El Salvador, Guatemala, Honduras, and Nicaragua. In addition, Mexico declared its independence on September 16, and Chile on September 18.

San Juan College will celebrate Hispanic Heritage Month with a series of events during the week of October 8-12, the last week of Hispanic Heritage Month. There will be many activities throughout the week including a Poetry Open Mic, Latino Family Game Night, and a movie night featuring Pan's Labyrinth (see pg.4-5 for review). A full schedule of events will be posted a week before on the Student Activities event board, all posting boards on campus, and through email. For further information, call the Student Activities office at 566-3403 or stop by room 6107.

In September 1968, Congress authorized President Lyndon B. Johnson to proclaim National Hispanic Heritage Week. The observance was expanded in 1988 to a month-long celebration (September 15 – October 15). America celebrates the culture and traditions of U.S. residents who trace their roots to Spain, Mexico and the Spanish-speaking nations of Central America, South America and the Caribbean.

The term Hispanic, as defined by the U.S. Census Bureau, refers to Spanish-speaking people in the United States of any race. More than 35 million people identified themselves as Hispanic or Latino on the 2000 Census. Below is more statistics about Latinos in the US which was provided by the U.S. Census website.

Club Feature: Are You Ready For a Mental Re-Evolution Meetings Every Friday 4-5 p.m.

Written by: Nathan Schaefer

As the enlightened Parisian thinker Descartes so eloquently put it "I think, therefore I am." In the SJC science club (which meets on the second and last Friday of every month at 4:00 pm in room 1805 of the WCC) we take this belief to heart: we think, therefore we are. We are the polyology think-tank.

If you want to be in the know, then join a diverse group of mentally stimulated individuals hell bent on quantifying this cosmic stew we call existence. We are planning adventurous excursions for research as well as for recreational and social purposes (so if you're a sociologist then you're an ologist and you should come on down). Our club advisers come from many (i.e. poly) scientific fields. We have paleontologists, we have entomologists, we have ecologists, we even have our own astronomer!

Next Friday you might find yourself on the second floor of the WCC looking at fossils around 4:00 in the afternoon. You may be savvy enough to walk into room 1805 and take a seat and learn something, or better yet, teach something.

All we ask is that you leave your pretensions at the door when you come rock out with the scientists. We need you to help us put the sexy back into science!

Riding for a Cause: Navajo British Columbia Student Ivan Gamble Riding for a New and Improved Navajo Constitution

Written by: Jose Dan

It's Tuesday, September 4, 4 pm in the beautiful mountain city of Flagstaff Arizona, as 29-year-old Ivan Gamble prepares for his 18-day-long trek across the Navajo Nation. He rides for one specific reason, to spread the word about reorganizing the Navajo Nation Constitution, which collapsed in 1989 due to the removal of former Navajo President, Peter McDonald, which resulted in a riot that claimed the lives of two people.

Ivan Gamble is currently taking a year off from The University of British Columbia (ubc.ca) for this fabulous cause. The only provisions Mr. Gamble possesses are a tent, backpack of supplies, and 1 ½ gallons of water for the ride between each of the Navajo communities he will be visiting.

I had the pleasure of meeting Mr. Gamble on Monday, September 17, 2007 during the United Tribes Club's Open House, which was an extreme success by the way. There Mr. Gamble shared a great amount of knowledge that even I didn't know, how embarrassed I was, but it's all good.

The things Mr. Gamble shared is that the Navajo Nation government hasn't been with a constitution since 1989. The reasons behind this is that the president then was charged with about 107 different felony counts from embezzlement to collecting bribes, but the federal grand jury had no evidence to prove that he had committed any of these charges set forth.

As federal agents swarmed the Navajo Nation Council, McDonald refused to leave even after a unanimous vote to boot him out. The conflict escalated to the point where the police used possible excessive force, ultimately causing a riot, where a law enforcement officer and citizen were killed.

In context to this the government crashed, leaving "the people" without any real rights on, the Navajo Nation. This trek is to reinvent the Navajo constitution to ensure the peoples rights are no longer violated by the United States Constitution.

So far more than 6,000 Navajo people have signed the petition, which Mr. Gamble will present to the tribal council. Hoping for better days to come, with this comes liberation.

After traveling through 15 different communities, Mr. Gamble has made a huge impact on the Navajo people as well as others in support of this great cause. Mr. Gamble ended this tour at Fort Lewis College in Durango, September 18 and will be prepared for the seasonal Tribal Council meeting.

With unity among us all we will achieve great success and a better tomorrow, like Tracy Flick once quoted "Our days may be long but they can sure get better." Fo Sho Yes!

For more information regarding this matter you can go to the website navajoconstitution@yahoo.com and cast your signature on the online petition.

Movie Review: Pan's Labyrinth

Friday, October 12

Performance Hall, 6 p.m.

Rated R, Running Time: 1 Hour 59 Minutes

Written by: Nicholle Charley, Kerby Johnson & Nicole Nez

Pan's Labyrinth is a gothic fairy tale set in northern Spain during the Spanish civil war. The heroine, Ofelia, is overwhelmed with the traumas of war and the remarriage of her mother, therefore seeks refuge in a separate reality, Pan's Labyrinth.

As killermoviereviews.com states, "Though Pan's Labyrinth deals in magic and fantasy, the emotions it stirs and with which it toys are all too real. Insects may or may not transmute into fairies, but death is real and the constant companion of everyone in the story. Using metaphor, del Toro brings that feeling home in a way that makes a more straightforward, non-fantastic method of telling a morality tale seem hopelessly ineffectual."

With an equally heartfelt review

www.thedougjonesexperience.com opposes, "It is not a film for young'uns. This is a visceral, brutal film in many ways, and unapologetically so. But every moment of violence is essential not only to the plot but to set the timbre of the time, unforgiving and very, very dangerous. But woven into this story of brutality and violence is another world of magic, no less menacing by any means, but it tugs both Ofelia and the viewer into its realm.

The two worlds exist side by side, and although we are never sure if this is just imagination on Ofelia's part as a way of dealing with the dreadful world around her (and I'm not just talking about the brutality of Fascism and the ruthlessness of her stepfather and his men) it doesn't matter. I'll let you all make up your minds when you see the film".

The film deals with the state of imagination of a child who fantasizes towards a mature state of reality that is a dark and methodological passage from her problems. The main plot of the story is finding out whether Ofelia is the underworld princess who was lost and died as a mortal in our world. The underworld king believes her spirit will return to the underworld.

Set in 1944 Spain, where Franco's fascists are still rummaging out rebels long after that country's civil war had ended, Ofelia and her very pregnant mother, Carmen, have been brought to a military outpost. The base is run by a sadistic and cruel Captain who also happens to be Carmen's new husband. Enticed by a faerie, Ofelia is led to a stone labyrinth where she meets the disturbingly eerie fawn, Pan.

It is there where the gothic fairytale begins. Pan describes to her the realm she is from and how she became lost. To return to her realm she must complete three tasks to prove she has not been tainted

Halloween Carnival

Saturday, October 27

Farmington Civic Center

1-6 p.m.

Written by: Dana Ashley

As you all know Halloween is just around the corner and we are getting ready for the Halloween Carnival, when all your little ghosts, goblins, ghouls, witches, princesses and pirates come out to play.

Once again San Juan College will provide a safe venue for the children of the Four Corners to come in their best costume and trick or treat to their heart's content. Past activities have included a cake walk, football toss, balloon sale, sponge toss, face painting, and haunted house.

San Juan College student clubs and staff will be providing the games and treats, which will be a very inexpensive 25 cents a ticket, with booths requiring no more than four tickets. The proceeds from the Halloween Carnival will go to the dedicated and hard-working clubs of SJC.

The earnings will go towards sending the clubs to various conferences, help pay for club-sponsored activities as well as helping to promote the mission of the club.

So all you ghost and goblins, and big kids at heart join San Juan College for our Halloween Carnival as we strive to continue our commitment to be a positive force in the community.

The Halloween Carnival will be held at the Farmington Civic Center on Saturday, October 27, from 1 to 6 p.m. Remember to mark your calendar, and join our spooky fun time.

For further information, contact Student Activities office at 566-3403 or stop by room 6107. Happy Halloween.

Shangri-La Chinese Acrobats

Tuesday, October 9, 7 p.m.

Performance Hall

The Shangri-La Chinese Acrobats have taken the world by storm and will continue to do so when they appear as part of the San Juan College Silhouette Series, Tuesday, October 9, at 7 p.m., in the Henderson Fine Arts Center Performance Hall.

The Shangri-La Chinese Acrobats offers more than a glimpse into the fascinating Orient. It consists of sensational Chinese acrobatics, balancing feats, martial arts displays and much more. A truly oriental spectacle and a show for all ages, the grace and precision of the acrobats are the triumph of years of dedicated training and discipline, but their art has been formed by centuries of tradition. Chinese acrobatics are much more than a series of stunts. Most of these acts clearly demonstrate the achievement of perfection through finding harmony between mind and body – an ancient concept in the Orient.

This sensational group has performed throughout South America, Central America, Southeast Asia, South Africa, Zimbabwe, Monte Carlo, Canada and the United States. The entertainment provided by these gifted performers appeals to all ages from young children to grandparents. Tickets are available at the San Juan College box office, and are $15 for adults and $12 for students and senior citizens. For further information, call the box office at 505-566-3430.

SJC Fall Drama “Proof”

Fridays & Saturdays, October 12, 13, 19, & 20 7:30 p.m.

Sunday, October 14, 2:30 p.m.

Little Theatre

This play is a love story on many levels - centrally, the love triangle between a young woman, her father, and the science of mathematics. Enter the young woman's sister and the father's protégé, and two more relationships emerge that focus on faith, trust, and intellectual passion. Catherine, a young woman in her mid-20s, has put her life on hold to stay home and take care of her ailing father, Robert, a man whose mathematical genius and madness eventually leads to his death, which is where the play Proof begins.

While we learn about Robert's and Catherine's relationship in flashbacks throughout the play, the rest of the story progresses in the future. Catherine's sister Claire arrives home to attend their father's funeral. Meanwhile, Catherine meets Hal, one her father's former students, who asks permission to sort through Robert's old mathematical notebooks – hoping to find something of value. What does emerge from Hal's search is a notebook containing a proof that will revolutionize the world of mathematics. The appearance of this proof wreaks havoc with these three characters as they try to maneuver through the intricacies of love and death.

Actors include Laura Bowen, Richard Davis, Scott Nugent, and Amanda Protzman. Director is theatre instructor Theresa A. Carson. Proof will be performed in the Little Theatre on October 12, 13, 19, 20 at 7:30 and October 14 at 2:30. Tickets can be purchased at the Henderson Fine Arts Box Office or by calling 566-3465.

Farmington Cinematheque Presents The U.S. vs. John Lennon

Saturday, October 6, Little Theatre, 6 p.m.

Rated PG-13, Running Time: 1 Hour 39 Minutes

Farmington Cinematheque and San Juan College will feature a biographical documentary titled The U.S. vs. John Lennon, Saturday, October 6, at 7 p.m., in the Henderson Fine Arts Center Performance Hall.

Directed by David Leaf and John Scheinfeld, the film is about British musician John Lennon’s transformation from a member of The Beatles to a rallying anti-war activist striving for world peace during the late 1960s and early 1970s. The piece also details the attempts by the U.S. government under President Richard Nixon to silence him.

The 99-minute documentary is rated PG-13 for some strong language, violent images and drug references.

General admission is $5. For further information, call the San Juan College Box Office at 505-566-3430.

Randy Follis New Exhibit “New Stuff from an Old Hermit” at the Fine Arts Gallery

Opening Reception: Friday, October 19, 6-8 p.m.

The San Juan College Fine Arts Committee (FAC) will celebrate the 20th anniversary of its artist’s invitational by featuring the works of western artist Randy Follis, October 19 through November 9. An opening reception will kick off the event on Friday, October 19, from 6 to 8 p.m., in the Fine Arts Gallery.

Follis’ show titled “New Stuff from an Old Hermit” will feature western as well as landscape oil paintings from the Four Corners area.

“Randy was the first artist featured in the Fine Arts Committee exhibit 20 years ago,” explains Marjorie Black, founding Fine Arts Committee member. “It was actually his idea for the FAC to host exhibits as a way to raise funds for future projects.”

Black said nearly 20 years ago Follis donated the large painting of Shiprock that hangs near the Art Gallery. He will once again donate a painting from the upcoming exhibit to San Juan College’s permanent art collection.

The San Juan College Art Gallery is open Monday through Thursday from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m., and Friday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. For further information about this or other art exhibits, contact Cindy McNealy at 505-566-3464, or McNealyC@sanjuancollege.edu.

Student Editorial: A Note On Distractions

Written by: Sam Roberts

Is it just me or is this time of the school year the longest and least fulfilling? We have gotten past the honeymoon phase of welcome backs and now the reality of being in school and needing to study is setting in. I call this the pre-mid term lull, and what a lull it is. How can we be expected to study when it is so beautiful outside? The leaves are about to change and the summer is clinging on, giving us a last few weeks of warm weather. Sitting in a classroom is blasphemous to the splendor outside.

I am of the opinion that Dr. Carol Spencer should cancel all classes and school in general until the weather gets cold and the distractions of outside are lessened. Maybe all work in general should be cancelled until the weather turns cold. Let's enjoy these last few weeks. Go outside and play, go for a hike, play with your kids, ride your bike. Enjoy the beauty! I am not alone. A rather informal poll I took around school had almost 30 percent of the students and a whopping 100 percent of faculty agreeing with me. Who can argue with those numbers? Action needs to be taken!

Now, some might say college is an optional life choice taken in order to fulfill some sort of greater goal. They may argue that nobody is forcing us to go to class. It's a personal choice. Higher education! Yeahaw! But the leaves are changing and it is still warm outside! It could be argued that the economy could not handle such a shut down.

There is a children's story, The ants and the grasshopper that addresses this topic. In this story the ants have no fun and the grasshopper plays outside singing. This may be a gross oversimplification but the message is clear—grasshoppers have more fun. Let's be grasshoppers, and worry about the winter when it gets here.

Response to September's Student Editorial

Written by: Dana Ashley

I feel that it is my duty to respond to the latest editorial of the Campus Buzz. I am sure that my fellow students would all like the opportunity to make your life easier, and heaven forbid that we would disturb your "euphoric state" but I think that everyone in attendance is entitled to the same piece of mind that you are requesting. Come on, college is work yes, but it's supposed to be fun as well.

Grant you, your wit and sarcasm are becoming legendary and we would miss your own particular type of charm, and yes you are full of poop, but what's not to love.

Now that we have covered the important topics, we must address the extremely, genuinely important topics that face the students of SJC on a daily basis:

Yes, I have to agree that life is good on our campus. As for the parking situation; get here early and it doesn't matter whether you park in the back or not because there are plenty of spaces in the front, "Early bird gets the worm."

The computer labs are a necessity for students who have important school work to finish, especially when it's your next class and you did not have time to finish the night before because you were playing catch up from your other classes. It is very frustrating to wait for a computer as you watch the minutes tick by till next class and it's due to the fact that someone wants to catch up on their Myspace. On that we can agree.

Now this is where we part company: football is a very important aspect of life; hundreds of thousands of people can not all be wrong. Who can go from one Sunday till the next without some comment on how their team is doing. Is nothing sacred?!

The handicapped button is another sore spot with me, speaking from what might be referred to as the "old geezer set." That button is a life saver! When you are pulling 30 pounds of books behind you, the last thing you want to do is fight with a door and have the door win.

Ok, I will give you the weather. This is not some out of the way tropical destination, nor are we going to observe polar bears in their natural habitat. It's New Mexico. Enough said.

Hump day is a tradition; let's face it everyone looks forward to it because that means that there are only two more days till THE WEEKEND! That has nothing to do with the camel you rode in on, you never know?!

I feel much better after getting this off my chest so to speak. Now I can have a better day and a very successful semester. By the way, the next time you get pissed off at all of us jerks, come by and see me, I'll give you some money, you can call someone who cares.
